POLICE SEEK THIRD MAN IN THE DIETZ MURDER CASE

Following a new clue received at the Town Hall police station, police are searching for a third man, whose arrest may clear up mystery in the murder of George Dietz, wealthy ladies' tailor, last Monday morning.

It is believed by Lieut. Ernest Mueller that he is the man who swung the heavy hammer that crushed Dietz' brain. Mueller today declared he believed Mrs. Dietz, the widow, and George Nurnberg, innocent.

"This is not a 'feminine' murder," said Mueller. "Women never murder in that manner. The womanly instinct is too strong to allow of such brutality. I know I've worked on too many murder cases to be very far wrong.

"And also the alibi established by Nurnberg will hold in any court."

The strong doubt of the guilt of Mrs. Dietz and Nurnberg is probably the reason they were allowed out on $10,000 bail each when arraigned in the Sheffield avenue court yesterday.

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL FOR BARRETT'S MAY BE OVERRULED

The motion for a new trial made by Attorney Edward S. Day on behalf of Ed Barrett, Hearst slugger, who was convicted of manslaughter yesterday afternoon, probably will be overruled by Judge Kersten, and he and his brother, Henry, will have to serve sentences of from one year to life.

Ed Barrett stabbed Walter Master-son to death in Tursch's saloon, 3415 Lincoln avenue, April 8.

The jury was out for four hours. When the verdict was read, relatives rushed forward weeping loudly, and the services of a score of deputy sheriffs were necessary in clearing the courtroom.

The prosecution was presented by Assistant State's Attorneys John Fleming and John K. Murphy.

Edward Day, counsel for the Barretts, made the charge that Murphy had spirited witnesses for the defense away.

A riot was narrowly averted outside of the Criminal Court building, when members of the Masterson and Barrett clans met. Scores of bailiffs separated the two factions of slug-gers in time to prevent bloodshed.

State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne today sent a letter congratulating John Fleming for his work in convicting the Barretts.

Hoyne said he was particularly pleased over this case, owing to the reports that had spread around town that the Barretts, on the strength of their connection with the Hearst papers, were immune from punishment.

Ed Barrett must still stand trial with his brother, Charley, and Arthur Friedman, on a charge of having murdered Frank Witt, street car conductor, during the newspaper strike last summer.

Attorney Jacob Le Boskey, representing the Witt family, has had this case continued several times.
